"We had our wedding at Netley Hall & all I can say is every single thing was pure perfection! From our first show around, we knew we had to get married here. The planning of our wedding was hassle free, every detail of our wedding was thought of & I knew it was going to be an amazing day. Thank you doesn't seem enough words for how grateful we are for having had such a special day."

DANCE WITH NATURE

Netley Hall is surrounded by 160 acres of private countryside, six freshwater lakes and two woodland areas.

THE NATURAL SHOT

Explore the beauty of countless photo opportunities and make memories that will last a lifetime. Our spaces provide an array of breathtaking opportunities for filling every frame.

HISTORY OF THE HALL

The current Netley Hall, a splendid example of Georgian architecture, holds a grade II listing. Constructed in 1855 by Shrewsbury architect, Edward Haycock. It was commissioned by Mr. John Treasure, to celebrate the marriage and coming together of the Hope and Edwards families. To this day, the sculpted faces of both bride and groom can be seen carved into the Brook Suite fireplaces.

He created a magnificent home with outstanding landscaped grounds, including our illustrious wedding gardens and naturally elegant fresh water lakes.

In 2001, Michelle Poole purchased Netley Hall to raise her family, personally overseeing a three-year renovation project costing upwards of three million pounds. Under her guidance, the Hall was meticulously returned to its full former glory. Netley remained a family home until 2017 when Michelle decided for the first time in over a century, that this fine building should open its doors to the public.

Today, Michelle's family, Harrison & Colin Poole, honour her legacy by sharing the glory of Netley Hall, and fulfilling her lifetime ambition to open a spectacular wedding venue.
